Last year's "farmers" will have first choice for the plot they worked last year. However, any who have not cleared off the ground from last fall's harvest will be billed for the work if it is not done immediately. Persons who are clearing their plots are instructed to clean off weeds, stalks, etc., and burn them or pile them in a convenient place for local maintenance men to do so. If the maintenance men to do so. If the plots are not cleaned off, the person who planted it last year will be billed for the necessary work expended in having it done.

Plowing Soon
Every tenant in Greenbelt is entitled to a garden area on the outskirts of the town, but no inquiries or reservations will be taken in the local office until the letters and applications have been mailed.

Before it is ready for assignment, the land must be plowed and fertilized. Mr. Rysticken states this will be done as soon as weather permits.

All owners of permanent gar-dens will be required to register them this year. No additional fee will be charged for these gardens but it is the only means of deter-mining which polts are being worked and which may be as-

Tin Can Collection Needs Shot in Arm

Greenbelt's response to the tin can collection made every Friday morning has been disappointing, according to Arthur Rysticken, assistant comunity manager. In addition the truck generally used to collect the tin cans was divert-to snow removal last Friday, no tin collection being made. This can collection made every Friday tin collection being made. This held the total for two weeks' collection down to only 1,200 pounds.

Residents of Greenbelt are negligent about the tin can drive. To emphasize this fact, Mr. Ry-sticken reported that from two to three tons of tin are removed from the incinerator every week. There is no way this much-needed tin can be separated from the garbage when garbage collections are made—and the tin is worthless once it has gone through the in-

Note: There will no longer be a siren signal for all-clear. The all-clear will be announced by radio and by lighting the street lights.

Town Service Flag Planned

A service flag for Greenbelt is being planned by the Town Council with the help and cooperation of the Greenbelt American Legion post, Town Manager Roy S. Braden announces.

Early last month authorization was given by the Council for the project. The cost of the flag and a plaque listing the names of all Greenbelters who are in the armed services will be borne by the town. Members of the Legion post will canvass the town within a few weeks in order to list and count the men. Mr. Braden estimates that the total will run well over 600, since a large number of the families in the newer "defense the families in the newer "defense houses" have men in the Army

No location for the flag has been selected yet, but it was indicated that the Shopping Center might be a suitable place.

Valentine Dance Tomorrow Evening

Plans for the Valentine's Day Dance tomorrow evening are very encouraging, according to Mrs. Robert Porter, chairman of the Women's Club committee in charge of arrangements. Ticket reports to date indicate that a large crowd

Mrs. Porter also expressed appreciation for the help radio announcements of the dance Mason and Arthur Godfrey have given her committee.

Members of the Dance's band also played in Greenbelt at the Victory Rally, and were well received. The Women's Club therefore expects residents to welcome them at this dance.

The committee in charge of decorations will work in the gymnasium Friday night.

The mode of dress for the dance has not been specified but the committee expects both afternoon and evening dress to be worn.

To Aid Scholarship

Part of the proceeds from the Dance will be donated toward the nursing scholarship fund which the Women's Club, in cooperation with the Prince Georges County Women's Club, is offering.

Any girl 18 years old or over with a high school education, residing in Prince Georges County, may apply for the scholarship, which is worth $250 and is immediately available. It will be forwarded to the hospital chosen by the girl selected.

GHA Elects Board At Annual Meeting; Growth Is Reported

The election of Borah Deutschman, Edward Turner, Hyman Black, and Katherine Arness for a two years' term on the board of directors of the Greenbelt Health Association was the highlight of the annual meeting of the Association, held Wednesday evening, February 10, in the auditorium of the elementary school.

It was also necessary to elect an auditing committee for the coming year and the auditors comprising the present committee were elected to succeed themselves. These members are Bernard Trattler, Edwin Feller and Vernon Stoutemeyer. The auditing report presented by this committee was very sented by this committee was very detailed, recommending also the incorporation of the Health Assoincorporation of the Health Asso-ciation under the laws of the State of Maryland. Monday Meeting To See Defense Movies

One-and-a-half hours of movies, including feature war news, de-fense news and other feature films will be presented for the enter-tainment and instruction of Greenbelt's defense workers and other citizens at the regular De-fense Movie Night program, Mon-day night, February 15, at 8 p. m. in the elementary school auditor-ium.

The only admission charge for these mass-motion-picture meetings, sponsored by the Civilian Defense Corps, is the purchase at the door of a twenty-five cent defense stamp—or more, Many Green-belters who have attended these meetings in the past have been enthusiastic about them. All civilian defense workers are again advised by Corps leaders that these monthly mass-meetings are a necessary part of their civilian defense instruction and thet their defense instruction and that their attendance is required. As in the past, the entire population of Greenbelt is invited to attend these meetings.

Fuel Oil Shortage Requires Careful Use of Hot Water

In view of the continued short-Braden has again suggested that local residents continue to lend their cooperation in conserving heat and hot water.

Mr. Braden has announced that by January 31st the town had used its entire quota of fuel oil for that period and about half of the February allotment. In order that some fuel be left for the purpose of heating water during the sum-mer months the temperature and the period of time when the furnaces are in operation have been reduced. At present, heat is being turned off in the apartments and homes at 8 p. m. and in the mer-cantile buildings and the school at Heat in the dwellings is started again at 4 a. m. and the other buildings are heated two hours la-

"We will not have as much hot water as might be desired but we will appreciate your cooperation in doing everything possible to help conserve heat in order that we may be comfortable during the remaining months." Mr. Braden also stated that further reductions may have to be taken at any time to assure us of getting across the cold weather line with adequate heat.

New Pilots

It is with some sense of temerity that the new Board of Editors takes over the helm of The Cooperator, with the resignation of Don Cooper. This feeling is born of a sincere awareness of the difficulties and responsibilities implicit in the editorship of Greenbelt's only newspaper.

The new editorial board represents an attitude friendly to the cooperative ideals of democratic action—as exemplified in the very existence of Greenbelt-learned through several years contact with "co-op" both here and in the West. Editorially we shall seek to be guided by the sole criterion of what best represents the general welfare of Greenbelt.

The news columns will be open to all equally, and the fullest cooperation is invited from all organizations in order that it may accurately reflect the community's activities and interests.

As is generally known, the production of the paper is a volunteer enterprise. Many of the staff work in Washington all day and too rarely have an opportunity to make personal contacts in town. This admittedly is a handicap, and is even more so with the lengthened week in most government offices.

Therefore, it must not be construed as indifference or arrogance if we cannot get around personally to contact our news sources as often as we should like. On the other hand we would emphasize the welcome of town officials and organization leaders to visit the office and meet the people who put out the paper.

While we know that we shall be unable to please everybody all of the time, it is in a sincere effort to be of constructive service to Greenbelt, that we have agreed to undertake this task.

Boy Scout Week

As Greenbelt joins the observance of national Boy Scout week we must feel a little ashamed at the poverty of this community's effort in Scouting. At one time there were two troops of Boy Scouts here, with a Sea Scout ship and a large Cub pack, too. Now, with twice the population, we have one troop, with a small group of Sea Scouts and Cubs. Lack of meeting space and lack of leadership have denied to local boys the fun and training to be found in America's largest boys' organization.

Now, in wartime, more than ever before, we need the Scout program. With its emphasis on public service Scouting has always been at the lead position in first aid, salvage drives, and a score of other community activities which we find so necessary.

In failing to offer our Greenbelt boys a place to meet and leadership we are hurting ourselves severely. Surely, in spite of the busy tempo of our days we can find time to organize a complete recreational program here. The Citizens Association, the Athletic Club, the Community Church —all are logical sponsoring bodies for troops. With a little special effort made during this Boy Scout anniversary week we should be able to begin the organizing of four troops for our town of 6000 people, instead of only one.

A Landmark

All of us, as consumers, can congratulate ourselves on achieving a new objective Sunday afternoon at 1:30, when the cooperatives' own program goes on the air over a national hookup.

While we cannot claim a complete victory over interests which would bar from the airwaves organized consumers speaking for themselves, the occasion marks a creditable compromise.

The Morning After

Ever see a circus lot just after the circus had moved on? Dismal sight, isn't it? With the grass so freshly trodden down and deep ruts where the heavy wagons have stood. The blare of the band seems to hang on the air and the sun still catches the glitter of the tinsel. Ever think what goes on in the circus in the time between visits to that lot? What a lot of trapeze grabbing and animal training must take place so that the circus may give you the same good show next year, or even a better one? better one?

Life is Quiet Greenbelt reminds me of that vacant circus lot right now. All the excitement of annual meetings has died away, but the speeches and discussions and recommendations seem almost to be still echoing in the meeting rooms. Sort of quiet, life is now. Or is it? What about the trapeze swinging and cat lashing that's got to go on all during the year just to make an duffing the year just to make another good show at the end of it? Who's going to do it? I'm going to do my share, so help me. And you'd better do yours, or you won't have any part in the circus. Finances Discussed

The business manager's report discussed at length the financial situation of the association, pointsituation of the association, pointing out that although a deficit existed in the capital equipment fund as of the close of the 1942 fiscal year, it was a deficit of long standing, having been in existence since 1941. Actually, according to Mr. Mesner, it had been cut down during 1942 to some slight extent. Previously the board of directors had ruled for that month, excluding entrance fees, which would automatically be referred to this fund in any case. Offsetting a rise in membership to a high of 1474, was the lean period of late 1474, was the lean period of late 1941 and early 1942, as well as the summer months when the association had only one physician, so that a depletion of capital equip-ment funds was necessary to (Continued on Page 4)

Marion Benson Stars In Girls' 27-13 Win; Boys Are Spanked

Hyattsville, Feb. 9.—As has been the case too often for satisfaction, the girls returned vic-torious all by themselves in the Central County Conference double-Central County Conference double-headers being so well run off cur-rently. The boys had the score more than doubled on them by the Magruder Park lads. The Griz-zliettes won the preliminary by a 27-13 count and the Grizzlies swooned before a 33-15 shellacking.

Town Fair Gets Consideration

Early consideration of the possibility of holding a town fair this fall was decided upon by the Greenbelt Town Council at its meeting last Monday night. Mayor Allen D. Morrison sponsored the resolution which requires that the Mayor write to local civic organizations to determine whether they want to revive the annual event and whether they are willing to do the work necessary to make the project successful.

Although the town fair would not be held until late in August the council agreed that organizations willing to participate should make their feelings known at the April 12 meeting of the council.

In previous years one of Greenbelt's most successful events, the town fair was not held last year for reasons variously ascribed to lack of volunteer workers, inadequate planning and excessive war time working hours.

Appropriation Vote
After some discussion, an ordinance introduced by Town Manager Roy S. Braden appropriating $4570.00 from the available surplus remaining from last year was passed with one dissenting vote. Items appropriated by the ordinance included $1000 for emergency civilian defense, $500 for a police radio, and salary increases for several town employees. Council George F. Bauer, who cast the negative vote, objected to passing legislation of this sort on the same night it was introduced.

Town Orchestra Makes Debut

Greenbelt is now the possessor of a concert orchestra, chiefly through the efforts of Borah Deutschman and Walter Slocomb. Although there are only 19 members in the orchestra, including Mr. Deutschman, the conductor, many more musicians are expected to enroll as soon as the orchestra comes into its own.

to enroll as soon as the orchestra comes into its own.

Last Sunday at the first rehearsal meeting of the players the conductor voiced the feeling of all present by remarking, "Since I have been in Greenbelt, I have never enjoyed myself more than I am enjoying myself at this moment." He also stated that he felt the orchestra played extremely well considering that most of the members have not recently practiced on their instruments; some for as long as two or three years. Most of the players have never played professionally but are interested in music for the sake of pursuing some interesting and enjoyable hobby.

Varied Music

At the present time, the orchestra has enough music available to present an interesting and varied program. When other members are added to the organization, many selections will be added to the repertoire.

Among those present at the first rehearsal were Borah Deutschman, conductor; Samuel Gottesman, William E. Ransom, T. Osman, and Mike S. Owen violins; Clarke George, flute; James P. Birtle, flute and piccolo; Richard F. Stuart, Emmet R. Griggs, and Louis Sherer, saxophones; W. Roy Nicodemus, piano (cello later on); Seymour Levine and Carl T. Meuse, trumpet; Eugene Gishwiller, trombone; C. R. Dupree, Frank C. Maisack, Jr., and Donald E. Nocodemus, clarinets; R. A. Snider, bass violin. Walter Slocomb, not present at the rehearsal, plays the piano or drums.

More Needed

Though the turnout was large enough for a successful rehearsal, the orchestra still has openings for many more players. 'String instruments are especially needed. All players, men or women, who can play an instrument fairly well are urged to join the group if they are interested in helping this town produce a concert orchestra of which they can feel proud. The players voted to meet on Sundays at 3:00 o'clock promptly in the social room of the Elementary School.

Point Rationing To Start

Items which come under the new point rationing program—canned and processed fruits, vegetables, and juices—cannot be sold during the week of February 22 when registration for Ration Book No. 2 will take place. Housewives should buy their requirements of these items in advance. The Food Stores are well stocked at present, Thomas B. Ricker, general manager of Greenbetl Consumer Services.

ger of Greenbett Consumer Services, assures us.

The dual job of checking and collecting coupons as well as money will complicate life at the food stores. "We may need a traffic cop," said Tom Ricker with a worried smile. A good deal will depend upon customers' and clerks' knowlege of what's going on. Details of the plan aren't yet clear but will be carried in full by daily newspapers as soon as they are announced. Prince Georges County Rationing Board has promised to train a group of volunteers to explain things in the store during the first week or so. The shopper should count points as she (or he) takes cans from the shelves.
